Press Announcement:

His Excellency Paul Kagame, President of the Republic of Rwanda participates in a presidential fireside chat at The Global Security Forum 2024

His Excellency Paul Kagame, President of the Republic of Rwanda, discussed how Rwanda is enhancing its infrastructure and building a strong foundation by investing in people through education, food security, and other initiatives to improve the country's economy.

"While some countries experienced challenging postcolonial phases, Rwanda has learned valuable lessons to avoid similar outcomes. By reflecting on past experiences, engaging in politics, and fostering strong relations with other African nations, Rwanda positions itself on the global stage and steers clear of global conflicts".

He also discussed how Rwanda maintains its own security while assisting other nations in resolving their issues. He recommends that countries work together to unify and find solutions to maintain security.

He discussed how individuals seek asylum for various reasons and how Rwanda supports them. President Kagame described Rwanda as a safe nation that provides a haven for migrants, addressing their issues and offering support whether they choose to stay in the country or move elsewhere. Since 2018, hundreds of thousands of people fleeing security concerns in Libya have found refuge in Rwanda.
